

Practice Nursing

Volume 19, No 3

109 Editorial

Wales in action

Jeannett Martin reflects on devolution and the Welsh Assembly's decision to remove prescription charges for patients to ensure better compliance.

110 Guest Editorial

Love your liver

Kate Birch argues that more attention needs to be given to the health burden of alcohol in national policy and the new GMS Contract.

112 News Focus

Cold and flu response sheds light on dementia

Liam Benison reports from the 10th Annual Dementias Conference, held in February, where some fascinating research and views were shared on aetiology, ethics and the NICE guidelines.

115 Clinical Q&A

Questions answered on cleaning leg ulcers and Doppler examinations; plus Martin Davies' view.

115 Letter

128 Prescribing

Making decisions about prescribing in diabetes

In the first of a new series, Stephen R Chapman explains the rationale for a decision-support tool for diabetes prescribers, and reports on some of the evidence for its effectiveness.

132 Clinical

Recognizing and treating Bornholm disease

Bornholm disease (or 'devil's grip') is a rare but highly contagious viral infection that begins with sudden, severe and intermittent pleuritic pain. Debbie Duncan explains what practice nurses need to know.

136 Dermatology

Diagnosing spots and vesicles

Jean Watkins reviews the variety of skin spots and vesicles that may present, including chickenpox and shingles. She poses three questions to test your knowledge (answers on page 147).

140 Travel Health Clinic

Air travel and health

Sandra Grieve examines the implications of the revised report on air travel and health published by the House of Lords in December.

145 Significant Event Review

Respecting an offended patient's autonomy

When nurse B suggested a cervical smear during a consultation for the contraceptive pill, patient A took offence. Nurse B submitted a significant event report, but was anxious that she may have handled the situation badly. Marilyn Edwards investigates.

149 Professional

Happy nurses: How life coaching can help

Neurolinguistic programming may provide a practical way of balancing your work and life commitments and allow you to rediscover yourself. Claire Westwood explains.

152 Product News

154 Classified

156 Profile

Wendy Cousins

Meet a former practice nurse who has now found her niche managing the clinical governance of an out-of-hours service in London.

Don't miss next month's issue. Subscribe to Practice Nursing at www.practicenursing.com (and save 10%!)

Clinical Focus

Stroke management

What will a national stroke strategy mean?

Attention to stroke has grown greatly in the last 10 years. Jane Williams reflects on the aims of the National Stroke Strategy, launched in December, and its implications for practice nurses. 116

Managing incontinence after a stroke

Stroke-related incontinence can be a troublesome and, at times, devastating experience for the patient. Joanne Mangnall explains how practice nurses are ideally placed to initiate treatment. 122

Cover picture

A medieval artwork (1391) showing Count Gaston de Foix collapsing during a stroke or heart attack. His servants are rushing to help him but have no medical equipment other than a jug of wine.